Ezra Cornell said in 1865, the year he founded his university, "I have always been in favour of combining labour and study." The Cornell Public Service Center and The Cornell Tradition continue to champion a strong work ethic as an integral part of a well-rounded education.

Employers are not only supervisors; they can be friends, mentors, and often are a student's best connection with the "real world" outside of Cornell. In some cases, employers can be like a second family for students away from home.

In all cases, the experiences employers create bring academic knowledge into the workplace and workplace skills into the classroom. We encourage all students to take this opportunity to recognize the employers who have made an impact on their lives. Nominations are due Monday, March 22, 2004, to either of the addresses at left.

Awards will be presented at the Student Employer Luncheon on April 7, 2004. Be sure to RSVP for the Luncheon by April 2, 2004.

Please type or print.
